Descrizione

From San Besso the pathway climbs to the Colle della Borra on the steep slope following a regular sloping track that along the hill leads to the ruins of a small mine nearby. This route was once used to descend sleds full of the extracted mineral towards Campiglia. The toponym “Borra” is said to originate from the presence of tunnels and caves. From Colle della Borra we descend the opposite slope first reaching the Grange la Borra, in a state of abandonment and, further downhill the Orletto and Vandilliana granges, both still used for the pasturing of animals during the summer. Having reached the bottom of the Piamprato Valley we find the path leading to the chair lift, and we continue down for around 1.5km to Piamprato, where we can find accommodation.
